

MEMİZ

A visual decay of time.

The display unit has nine programmable buttons that can be set into a sequence of lights.

The user-created light sequences play back in the order they were programmed.

The object stores two messages, showing the most recent program first, followed by the older. Upon entering a new message, the oldest message is erased.

